The Dedication

They begin small;
A tree, a seed
A school, an idea.

They grow with help
From faith, sunshine and God's love.
Strong become both
From support of caring.
In thanks, limbs reach out
And touch the sky.
In reaching to be better,
Leaves are born.
To a school, leaves are
People who believe
What is taught is important
To their growing.

The life they live continues
Through storm and pain.

Both are there in the end;
The tree,
The school,
Until someone cuts them down.

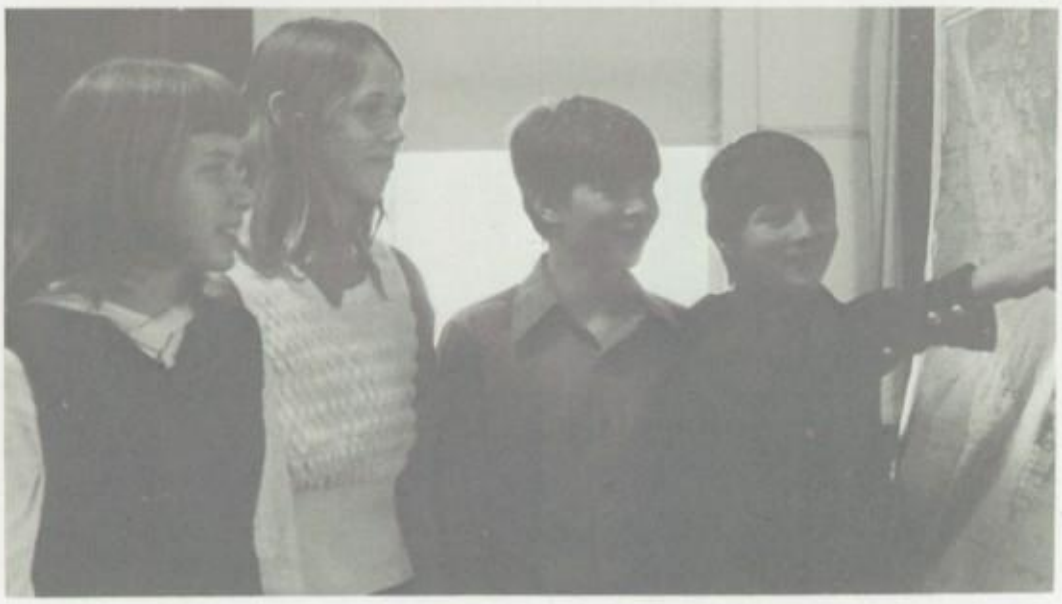
Geography

And that's where I want to go someday.



Diane Benda gets a lift from some friends.

Phy-Ed

Phy-Ed gives me a pounding headache.

A First Aid course was added to the Physical Education program this year. Students viewed several movies which showed different First Aid techniques such as artificial respiration, different carries, splinting and bandaging. They were then able to try these techniques on each other. They were also taught what to do in emergency situations such as a car accident or poisoning.

Ricky McCarvelle works desperately to get Resusi Annie breathing.

What kind of candy is that?

Candy is dandy, but...

You mean I forgot the sugar!

Cooking And Other Such Stuff

It helps if you read the recipe!

I'm not a chimney sweep.

Doing dishes, boys?

Yuk! What is this stuff?

Cooking class starts with our "brave" teacher, Sister Corinne, giving directions. She competes with us for awhile and even when she calms us down we still don't pay attention.

We move down the hall to our old faithful home ec room. The way we ran you would think we were going for the world record in the 50 yard dash.

Next Sister Corinne tells us the recipe step by step, line by line. The reason for this is when we so called "read" the recipe we don't actually follow the steps, but put all the ingredients in at once.

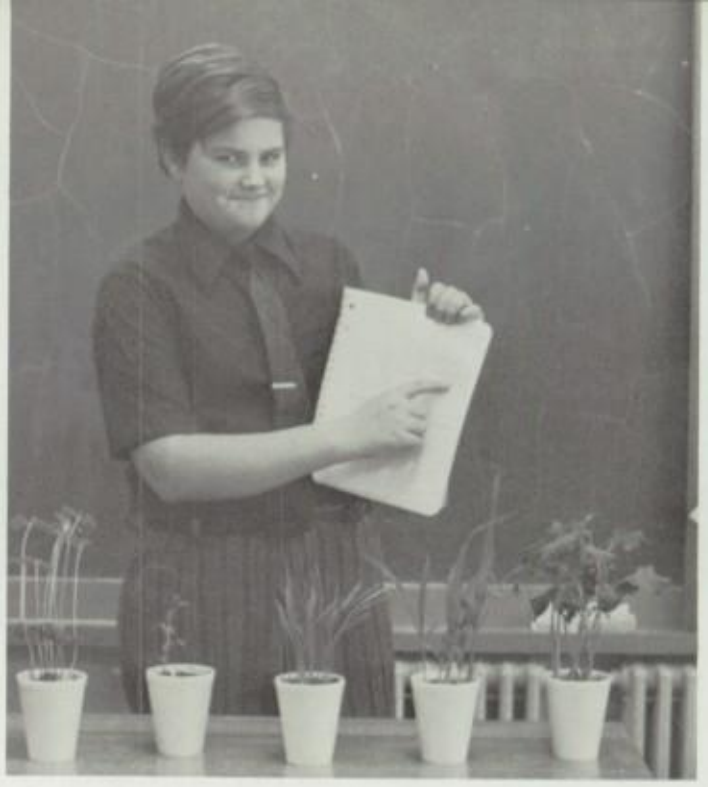
Remember the time Sister Corinne burnt every pan of peanut butter bars except, of course, for the pan that was raw?...and the time she bumped the lid off the popcorn popper? There was popcorn flying all over.

There is a race to the oven to get your pan in first. You see, the first ones in will be the first ones out! Unfortunately the first cookies in came out last, black and scorched. Well, that's the way the cookie crumbles!

Clean up time is no ones favorite time. We are "supposed to" clean our pans, the sink, the tables, the stoves and sometimes even the refrigerator!

Editors Note: 7th and 8th grade cooking class was really one the the "fun classes" in junior high. Students successfully make kringles, popcorn balls, Christmas cookies, decorated cakes, muffins and bars. Mothers even requested recipes from some of the "successes"!

Dissecting is uh...fascinating! Dana Hyberger, Cory Christianson and Alan Ferrie are assisted by Denise Kuennen.



Hey, Steve Zajicek, you wouldn't happen to have a green thumb?

Careful, Dave Sill, those plants are delicate, especially since they have been irradiated.

Science

Cindy, I think your partner is falling asleep.

Joel Kruse, Tim Sir, and Tim Puffer study chemical mechanisms of precipitation.

RIGHT: Karen Ferrie and Trish Fraser are intent on finding their testtube results.

That's quite a line up of Algebra II students.

Ed Dusheck prepares material for Mr. Zajicek's 8th grade history class.

Service Apostolate and Action Learning

Ken Kalvelage concentrates on finding an answer to a bookkeeping question. He assists Mr. Corkery in this class.

Norma Bohr corners Diane Balik with a problem in Algebra I. Diane is an action learning student in Sr. Mary Jo's class.

SPORTS

Cheerleaders traditionally start a basketball game by leading all in the "Star Spangled Banner" (ABOVE) Then the games begin and the boys show what many hours of hard work, skill drills, shooting, and defensive action can do for a team.

The spirit ran high all year with the help fo the cheerleaders and fans. AT RIGHT we see the Varsity Cheerleaders; Donna Langreck, Audrey Moellers, Rochel Moellers, Barb Dusheck, Janela Becker, Mary Ellen Minear and Tricia Fraser; in formation. Both squads of ch cheerleaders keep spirit high with little extras such as pom-pom routines, pep songs, and skits along with the regular cheers.

One of the most exciting games was the one played at home on Feb. 18 against the Spring Valley Wolves. A triple overtime was played and we came out on top 57-56. Our season was a hard one, but the guys played hard and learned much.

Baseball Honors were awarded to Doug Murphy, Dave Herold and Craig Christianson who were named to all conference baseball.

Baseball

The 1974 fall baseball season saw several veteran players returning to give the team the solid support it needed. Freshmen, Rick McCarville and Dana Puffer added the new life to the team. In the sectional they faced Kee High and came off 10-3. Doug Murphy, Dave Herold and Craig Christianson were named to the All-Conference Team. However brief the season, it did have its glorious moments.

Managers Scorers

RIGHT-Hey, Jane Clark, you're supposed to be keeping score!

The managers play an important part in basketball. They take care of the equipment and see that it's in good shape. At games, the managers have the job of keeping track of all statistics so that the coaches can pin-point the teams weaknesses and strengths. The junior managers can often be found helping out at daily practices.

BELOW-Pep Club officers: Diane Balik, pres.; Pat Herold, vice-pres.; Norma Bohr, treas.; Missing, Carol Bohr, sec.

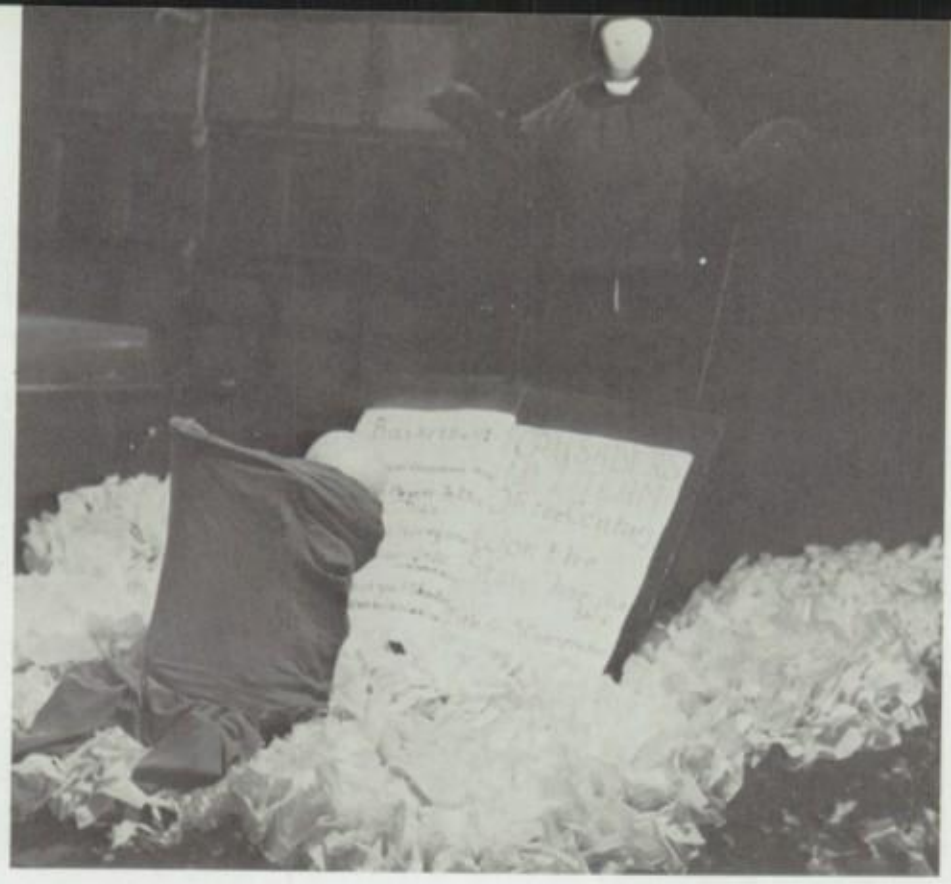
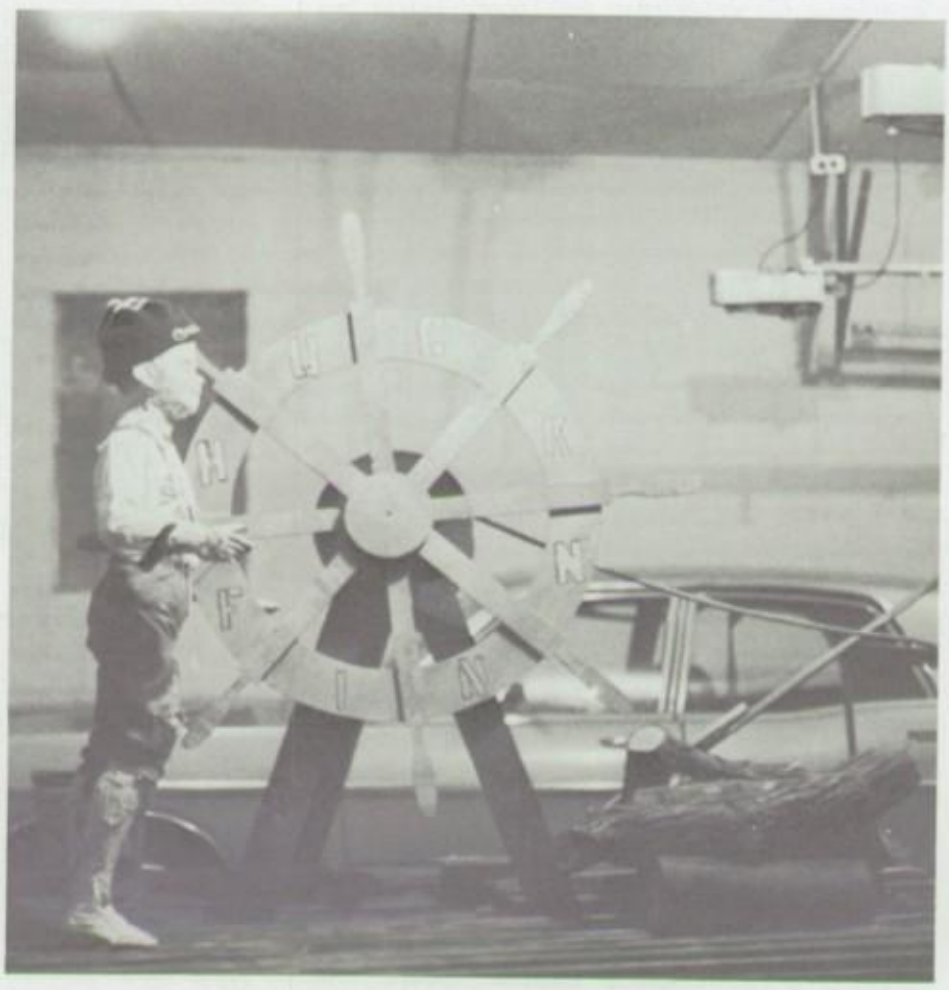
The only way to quiet a "baby" is to put a pacifier in her mouth.

Darrel Andera likes "dressing up" for special occasions.





Homecoming 1974 proved to be one of hard work, excitement, tension, joy, and success.

Certain days during Homecoming Week were designated as special. Tuesday was Talent Day with the students sharing their talents in skits and games. Wednesday was set aside as mourning Day during which students showed their sympathy for the opposing Knights. Hats and buttons showed school spirit Thursday as everyone rattled to class. Friday everyone was dressed in school colors for the traditional Blue and White Day, to show his enthusiasm and support.

An all-school Homecoming Mass was held in the gym Friday morning with Kris Kringle gifts exchanged during the sign of peace.

And that night we faced the Mason City Knights. Triumph was ours in a skillfully played game. Homecoming activities ended with a dance.

The wall and float competition was judged by a group of alumni at the Pep Rally Thursday night. First place in the wall competition went to seniors with the sophomores receiving second place honors. The juniors took third place followed by the freshmen and then the junior high. The theme for the floats this year was that of books. The sophomores won first place with "Moby Dick", followed by the seniors with "Huckleberry Finn". "Winnie the Pooh" won third place for the juniors. The freshmen came in fourth with the "Guiness Book of Records". Other highlights at the Pep Rally included, of course, cheers, skits, and speeches-with Dave Hubka, a 1974 N.D. graduate, as the guest speaker. A Zorch and singing of Christmas songs concluded the rally which was followed by the serving of coffee and cookies.

Homecoming '74

The 1975 Mardi Gras Dance was held on Friday evening, January 24. The dance began at 8:00 and featured the band "Cozmos." Mardi Gras Court Royalty included King candidates Tom Joyce, John Sindelar, Craig Christianson, and Steve Burke. Queen candidates were Donna Langreck, Mary Ellen Minear, Janice Herold, and Marjorie Bohr. Finally the big moment arrived at 9:00 with the announcement that Steve Burke and Donna Langreck were King and Queen. Mr. Richard Fraser, President of the Home School Association, crowned the royal couple.

Mardi Gras

Mardi Gras festivities, held annually to raise fun and funds for Notre Dame, were held on Sunday, February 2. A noon luncheon was served in the Assumption Church Hall while activities in the gym included the fish pond, cake walk, haunted house, pop throw and country store.

Mardi Gras fund-raising projects were sponsered by each class. The senior class held the traditional pancake and sausage breakfasts on February 9 and February 16. The juniors held a Swiss steak dinner on January 26 while the sophomores class donated money from its class treasury. The freshmen sponsored a raffle for a bean-bag chair. The junior high held raffle for an afghan. The lucky winners of the raffles were drawn that night at bingo which ended the day's events of fun and work. Special thanks to all who helped make the 1975 Mardi Gras a success.

Stick out that shakey hand Tim, but watch out for Jane, the Werewolf.

Would you like anything else?

Hey, look at all those Mardi Gras hats.

Come on, Mr. Zajicek, you can ring it.

Gee, What happened to all the lollipops?

Conference Speech Festival

There were a few "hitches", but all seemed to go well with the 2nd annual Conference Speech Fest until noon on Friday, January 10. Snow began to fall, wind began to blow and a rush of phone calls had to be made cancelling and re-scheduling the festival. February 22 sounded like a good date.

But snowflakes kept falling on the head of the festival and seemed to gather into blizzard force during the final week of second-round preparations. "Minor changes" in registration began to come in on Thursday, when one school canceled out. This was only a foreshadowing of things to come.

Saturday, February 22, the participants began arriving early at 8:30. They numbered 10 out of an expected 18 from that school! Some of these were not registered, but would be active in the following areas . . .

At 9:20, all were ready to begin . . . wait, where was the fifth school? With that mystery unsolved, students and speech coaches began the morning speech sessions. At 10:00 the latecomers arrived! (Bus trouble)

The interesting events of the day were far from over at noon. The directors of one workshop were unable to come. The teacher for another was later than she had planned. (She had been lost!)

Fortunately, all present were adaptable and seemed to get both pleasure and profit from the workshops. These workshops included acting, stage design, make-up, mime and dance.

The whole festival was well received. One teacher said, "It's hard to imagine so much learning in such a short time." A student exclaimed, "I had a really fantastic time."

Rosane Dos Santos
Exchange Student

Rosane Santos came to Iowa on Wednesday, Jan. 22, 1975, and was welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Ted Crow and family, her host family.

Rosane Maria Souza dos Santos is seventeen, short, has brown hair and brown eyes and is now one of the juniors at Notre Dame. She comes from a family of seven, 1 brother and 3 sisters. Her hometown is Santos, Sao Paulo Brazil. She is participating in the International Cultural Exchange one year homestay-study program.

Before coming to Notre Dame Rosane attended Santista College, the high school in Santos. In addition to classes there, Rosane also attended C.C.B.A. to study German and C.C.B.E.U. to study English. Her native language is Portugese.

Rosane's favorite hobbies include going to the movies, impersonating in her theatre group, riding a bicycle, going to the beach, playing volleyball, tennis and ping pong. Rosane plays champion table-tennis for the city team at the International club. She also enjoys playing in the brass band, reading, going to the theatre and going to picnics.

What is it like to be a foreign exchange student here? Here is how Rosane reacts. "I really like Cresco, I never saw snow before I came here. I like Notre Dame- it's a very nice school, the people are so friendly and the teachers are so helpful. I've been enjoying it Here!"
